MULTIUNIT LEADERSHIP

The 7 Stages of Building Profitable Stores Across Multiple Markets

Personal Journal & Book Discussion Guide

Note: This Guide is aligned to the revised 4th Edition of Multiunit Leadership only (red cover, above).

How to Get the Most Out of The Book & Discussion Guide

Transforming the content of a business book into actionable results for its readers is the goal of any author. The first three editions of this book have been read by over 200,000 leaders from hundreds of different companies and organizations around the globe. But Multiunit Leadership is more than a book. Its content has expanded across a variety of media and platforms. Multiunit Leadership is also a workshop, conference keynote, app, video, eLearning course, audiobook, assessment tool and podcast. This book's insight is active, not static. It expands and progresses quarterly as we gain new insight on the Multiunit Leadership role via best demonstrated practices and ongoing research. That fresh insight is then shared with fellow readers and leaders in an online feedback loop via social media (like LinkedIn, Twitter, Vimeo and YouTube) and especially at Sullivision.com.

A few suggestions on the best ways to get the most out of the book:

BEFORE YOU READ MULTIUNIT LEADERSHIP:

Visit our website Sullivision.com, click the Multiunit Leadership tab at the top of the Home Page and:

- Take the free online Multiunit Leader Assessment to see how you stack up against the seven leadership stages and competencies detailed in this book. This will give you better perspective and insight into where your strengths and opportunities lie. And it may in turn provide guidance into which chapters to pay keener attention to.
- You've already downloaded this free Multiunit Leadership Book Discussion Guide so you can customize the insight chapter-by-chapter to your own company or organization. Now track, note and personalize the ideas and strategies most relevant to your leadership journey, and discuss each chapter's content with your colleagues who are also reading the book.

WHILE YOU READ MULTIUNIT LEADERSHIP:

• Mark it up: use a pen, highlighter or fold the pages to note the sections or ideas you want to remember and put into play in your market. Take a picture of the page and text it to yourself or a colleague who would benefit from it, too.

- With your smartphone, access the links to the free short Multiunit Leadership videos interspersed and embedded throughout the book via the scannable QR codes to illuminate and expand the key learnings of each core Multiunit Leadership competency.
- After you finish each chapter, use this Multiunit Leadership Book Discussion Guide to write down Key Learnings (the things you most want to apply at work and don't want to forget). This will help you align the content more directly to improving your company's culture, targets and challenges. Make note of the relevant passages from the book that you feel most inspired to share or remember. If several other people from your company are also reading the book, get together, compare your notes with theirs and discuss how to best apply the lessons learned to move your organization forward.

AFTER YOU READ MULTIUNIT LEADERSHIP:

Inspiration is perishable. When you finish the book, keep the momentum going and continue to develop, apply and improve your Multiunit Leadership skillsets every single day. Go to Sullivision.com, click on the Multiunit Leadership tab at the top of the home page and:

- Access our library of free articles, videos, templates, podcasts, lists and ideas for expanding your Multiunit Leadership skillsets.
- Download the Quarterly Business Plan and High Impact Unit Visit Checklist ebooks at Sullivision.com.
- Access our award-winning elearning course MultiU at Sullivision.com for a deeper dive and interactive immersion into the art of Multiunit Leadership.
- Re-watch the Multiunit Leadership video links via the QR codes in the book or subscribe to our free Jim Sullivan/ Sullivision YouTube channel.
- Click on the FAQ section of the Multiunit Leadership page at Sullivision.com where you'll find new answers to fresh questions your fellow leaders most commonly ask relative to the book's content and how to best apply its concepts and competencies.
- If you'd like to transform the content of the book into a customizable training and development course for your organization, visit our online store at Sullivision.com and check out the Multiunit Leadership-in-a-Box Development Course.
- Leadership capacity is a prime directive for any organization. Get a copy of this book for all of your high-potential unit managers, and help them start progressing on the road to Multiunit Leadership development.

Thanks for your time and investment.

Introduction (Pages 1-16)

How to best apply the content and concepts into your organization:

The Introduction chapter of Multiunit Leadership details the goals of the book and highlights the results of our most recent research into the Multiunit Leadership role (pages 11, 12, 13). We share descriptions of how being the "manager of managers" differs in scope, scale and responsibility from managing just one unit.

The Introduction chapter challenges readers to assess and consider where you are as a Multiunit Leader by answering three questions:

"What kind of leader do I want to be?"

"If I'm not yet where I want to be, what do I need to do to get there?"

ANSWER THOSE QUESTIONS RIGHT NOW:

The answers are the first steps on the journey to mastering Multiunit Leadership.

The Introduction also introduces us to the Japanese word shoshin, which means having an attitude of openness and eagerness, combined with a lack of preconceptions when studying a subject, even when studying at an advanced level, just as a beginner in that subject would.

IF YOU ARE READING MULTIUNIT LEADERSHIP WITH COLLEAGUES:

- Assign the Introduction chapter to all your key team members to read.
- Ask them to identify and write down the three key learnings they got from this chapter.
- Have them bring that list to your next meeting.
- Review the lists together. Prioritize and determine what you need to start doing, stop doing and what you need to continue doing as a team. Design an action plan and timetable for implementation. Repeat this process for every chapter.

Our research has detailed 7 specific stages of Multiunit Leadership growth (see The Leadership Ladder illustrated on page 15 in the book). Each stage is sequential, but fluid. You will use the skillsets of one stage with some unit managers and the skillsets of another stage with other unit managers. Multiunit Leadership, like all leadership, is always situational.

Stage 1:

Brand Ambassador (pages 18-29)

- Review the detailed list of Brand Ambassador competencies on page 19. How many of these do you exhibit? Which ones would benefit you the most as a leader?
- Read the entire chapter. Prioritize and determine what you need to start doing, stop doing and what you need to continue doing relative to the dozens of Brand Ambassador competencies detailed in the chapter.
- Look at the section on "Non-Negotiables" on page 27. Conduct this exercise with all of your Unit Managers to demonstrate the importance of clarity in values and communication of expectations (and modeling the way).
- Fill out the Brand Ambassador self-assessment on page 29.
- Identify and write down three key learnings you got from this chapter below. Now create an action plan and timetable for implementation.

Stage 2:

Talent Scout (pages 31-86)

- Review the detailed list of Talent Scout competencies on page 31. How many of these do you exhibit? Which ones would benefit you the most?
- Look at the question in red on page 33. Answer it.
- Check out the list of 11 Best Practices for Employee Retention on page 45. How many of these are you doing? What strategies would you add to the list?
- Fill out the Talent Scout self-assessment on page 84.
- Identify your high performing team members. Think of ways to enhance their strengths and keep them engaged daily.
- Read the entire chapter on Talent Scout. Identify and write down five key learnings you got from this chapter below. Create an action plan and timetable for implementation of those key learnings.

Stage 3:

Servant Leader (pages 87-104)

- Read the entire chapter. Then re-read the detailed list of Servant Leader competencies on page 87. How many of these do you exhibit? Which ones would benefit you the most?
- Review the Pyramid on page 92. What can you do to build a stronger culture in your teams?
- Fill out the Servant Leader self-assessment on page 102.
- Prioritize what you need to start doing, stop doing and what you need to continue doing relative to all the competencies of a Servant Leader listed in this chapter.
- Identify your best performers in your market. Think of ways to enhance their strengths, develop their skills and keep them engaged.
- Identify and write down five key learnings you got from this chapter below.
- Create an action plan and timetable for implementation of those key learnings.

Stage 4:

Head Coach (pages 105-140)

- Review the detailed list of Head Coach competencies on page 105. How many of these do you exhibit? Which ones would benefit you the most? Now read the entire chapter.
- On pages 112-114, we introduce the concept of the 5th Day Strategy. Review this concept and consider how your current behavior aligns to it or detracts from it.
- There are 16 specific Coaching techniques detailed on pages 114 to 117. Which of these do you already exhibit? Which would you identify as priorities to work on?
- Consider the notion that "time management" is dead, as detailed on pages 125-130. Where are your strengths and weaknesses in this area? How about your team?
- Fill out the Head Coach self-assessment on page 138.
- Identify and write down five key learnings you got from this chapter below. Create an action plan and timetable for implementation (well-done is better than well-said).

Stage 5:

Marketing Guru (pages 141-162)

- Review the detailed list of Marketing Guru competencies on page 141. How many of these do you exhibit? Which ones would benefit you the most? Now read the rest of the chapter.
- Consider the quote from Jeff Bezos on page 142. What does it mean for your team?
- Fill out the Marketing Guru self-assessment on page 161.
- Prioritize and determine what you need to start doing, stop doing and what you need to continue doing relative to all the Marketing Guru detailed in this chapter.
- Consider the five Customer Patronage Stages detailed on page 143. Which of the five is your market strongest in.? Which are you weakest in?
- Identify and write down five key learnings you got from this chapter below.
- Create an action plan and timetable for implementation of those key learnings.

Stage 6:

Synergist (pages 163-212)

How to best apply the content and concepts into your organization:

- Review the detailed list of Synergist competencies on page 163. How many of these do you exhibit? Which ones would benefit you the most? Now read the rest of the chapter.
- Fill out the Synergist self-assessment on page 211.

VIENDAUNICE EDONATIUS CUNDTED

- The concept of a Quarterly Business Plan (QBP) is detailed on pages 167 through 176. Assess which of these strategies you already use, and which you should begin using each quarter to align and define goals for your team & market.
- Review the detailed checklists and strategies for planning and executing High Impact Unit Visits (pages 177-210). Prioritize and determine what you need to start doing, stop doing and what you need to continue doing relative to all the competencies of a Synergist that are detailed in this chapter.
- Identify your high performers. Think of ways to enhance their strengths and keep them engaged.
- Identify and write down five key learnings you got from this chapter below.
- Create an action plan and timetable for implementation of those key learnings.

Stage 7:

Goal Getter (pages 213-226)

- Review the detailed list of Goal Getter competencies on page 213. How many of these do you exhibit? Which ones would benefit you the most?
- Now please read the entire chapter.
- Prioritize and determine what you need to start doing, stop doing and what you need to continue doing relative to the many competencies of a Goal Getter detailed in this chapter.
- Consider the quote from Chris McChesney on page 215. What does it mean and can you think of an example in your own experience?
- Fill out the Goal Getter self-assessment on page 225.
- Scan the QR code on the bottom of page 225 and watch the short video it's linked to.
- Identify and write down five key learnings you got from this chapter below. Create an action plan and timetable for implementation.

Stage 7:

The End (of the beginning)

(pages 213-226)

- On page 231 there is a great question under the red heading Performance and Execution that begins "If every other part of our operation..." Answer that question for your market.
- There are 23 Questions on page 232 that will shed a lot of insight on your market, team, challenges and opportunities...but only if you take the time to answer those questions. So please take the time to answer them. They're not easy, but answering each one will give you a clear and defined roadmap for your market/territory over the next six months. Do it.
- Check out Sullivan's 33 Leadership Laws on pages 236-240. Which three are your favorites?
- Incremental daily gains is what moves a business--and a leader--forward. You don't have to be flawless, just improving.
- Identify and write down five key learnings you got from this chapter below.
- Create an action plan and timetable for implementation.

FAQ: Multiunit Leadership

The Multiunit Leadership section of Sulllivision.com is an online repository of resources and research, questions and answers, and shared expertise from our readers and leaders. Here are some of the most commonly asked questions and answers:

- Q: What are the most number of units or stores a Multiunit Leader can supervise and still be effective?
- A: The short answer is: "That depends." Some MULs suggest that six units is the maximum, since you should theoretically be spending one day a week in each store, and presumably have a day off to recharge. Yet we've seen MULs effectively supervise as many as 18 locations in close proximity to one another, while less-effective MULs seriously screw up the supervision of only three units. It's imprudent to suggest hard numbers for optimal spans of control, or how many specific people should be managed by any one person. Effective Multiunit Leadership is contingent on four criteria: 1) the expanse of geography, 2) the distribution of leadership, 3) the use of technology, 4) how well you prioritize and 4) the nature of the brand you work for. Geography is also a critical factor. Do you have ten units spread across ten square miles, or do you have ten units dispersed about one hundred square miles? If you're a Multiunit Leader in an airport, and you oversee 15 different operations all located within a few hundred yards of one another, then perhaps 15 units is not too many.
- Q: I seem to be getting overwhelmed with Data Onslaught and Task saturation in the last year due to the increase in volume of reports I have to manage. How do I keep my head above water?
- A: The right technology lessens the burden of leadership. For example, by allowing information to come to you instead of you having to go find it. Of course, having information constantly rise like a flood is an obstacle to actually leading, since now you're primarily managing reports instead of people. The essence of a great unit or store is the result of effective distributed leadership (the leadership abilities in place in each location), and your impact is dependent on how effectively leadership is deployed across the marketplace. You keep your head above water by putting a premium on multiplying yourself through other people.
- Q: What is the best way to apply each of the seven Multiunit Leadership stages you've detailed in the book?
- A: Read each chapter, and then follow the Multiunit Leadership Book Discussion Guide questions detailed for each stage/competency. Most importantly, apply the strategies you don't currently embody in your units or market and track the before and after results.

Q: What key questions should I be asking myself as a Multiunit Leader?

A: The best questions of all relative to are detailed on page 232 of the book, and here are a few bonus ones to consider:

- Do the beliefs and priorities of the company and the people I work with align with my own values and beliefs?
- What do I most want to achieve at work?
- What evidence and measurement do I want of my effort?
- Is what I'm currently doing the best thing to do given all that I want to achieve? If not, what needs to change?
- Am I being challenged? Am I growing? How do I know for certain?
- What makes people give the very best of themselves? How can I help them do that more?
- Who was the best boss I ever had? Worst? What was the greatest team I was ever on? Worst? What can I learn from each of them?

Q: What's a good way to demonstrate the power of collaboration among my store managers?

A: If the team is sitting at a round table you can demonstrate the importance of Collaboration with the following exercise:

- Ask each manager or GM to write down at the top of a piece of paper a big work-related challenge they are currently facing. Ask them to be as specific as possible in describing it. Give them 5 minutes to write it down.
- After 5 min ask them to pass the paper to the left. Then that person spends one-minute writing down a possible solution. Announce "pass" when the minute is up. Each person passes the paper to the left again and the next person adds their solution/idea for one minute.
- The paper goes to each person at the table and ends up back with the person who started and she or he should now have 7-8 solutions thanks to the team.

Q: If I want to invest in the elearning course MultiU, what are the tech requirements?

- The most current version of Chrome, Firefox, Edge (for desktops tablet Edge does not support Flash) or Internet Explorer.
- Latest version of Flash player. You can use https://get.adobe.com/flashplayer/ to confirm you have the latest player and then download and install if you don't.
- Internet connection: Recommended minimum 256kbps download & 128kbps upload. You can check your connection speed at www.speedtest.net or a similar testing site.
